BLACKROCK SILVER (BKRRF) 7-11-22

News today that first drill results from a "scout" program hit lithium mineralization (please see company press release on their website).

The company had some sniffs of lithium at Tonopah North before and decided to test it, and these results show there is a lot of "smoke" in terms of lithium potential.

These results will be used to point management in the right direction to target for higher grades. And since lithium is hosted in the cover rocks, it's cheap to drill test.

If this turns into something, Tonopah will end up as not just a good zip code for silver but also lithium.

The stock is up on the news, as it should be, but is still dirt cheap.
